VOL. LXIV.-NO. 287.

THE PRESIDENT OF FRANCE NAR-ROWLY ESCAPES DEATH.

on His Way to the Races When the Bomb Was Thrown at Mis Carringo-The Exploston Scattered Missiles All Around, but No One Was Hurt-Great Ovations to the President at the Track and Upon His Return to the Palace-Escape of the Would-Be Assassin-The Mob Nearly Milled a Detective Whom They Mistock for the Bomb-Thrower, Special Cable Desputch to THE SUR. PARIS, June 13.-The race meeting at Long champs to-day, at which the race for the Grand Prix de Paris was run, furnished the occasion for an attempt to assassinate President Faure, who, fortunately, escaped without the slightest

The heat was sweltering, but this did not prevent large crowds from assembling along the route to Longchamps to see the brilliant equipages and their fashionable occupants as they drove to the course. There was also a large growd in the Bois de Boulogne. As the landau in which President Faure rode was passing the cascade at the end of the Bols de Boulogne a man in the crowd threw a bomb at the carriage. The missile exploded, but not a person was in any way injured. The explosion caused the greatest excitement.

A man who was supposed to have thrown the bomb was arrested after he had been nearly beaten to death by the mob. It was then found that he was innocent. It was at first thought that some one had fired a blank revolver shot in the air.

President Faure paid no heed to the explosion. nor to the excitement which followed it, but proceeded directly to the course. There is not the slightest doubt that the bomb was aimed at M.

The news of the attempted assassination quickly spread throughout Paris, and vast crowds assembled, who gave the President a splendid ovation as he was returning after the races to the Palace of the Elysée.

It was almost 3 o'clock when M. Faure was passing the cascade and when the explosion oc curred. The detonation was loud, but it was at first supposed that a madman had fired a blank shot. Immediately thereafter, however, there was a shower of nails and scraps of metal, while the air was filled with an evil odor.

No damage was done to the President's carriage, which proceeded without stopping. Upon reaching the race course M. Faure went at once to the President's box on the grand stand and faced the people, who acclaimed him enthusiastically. The Grand Duke Sergius of Russia was in the paddock. When he learned of the outrage he went to the President's box and warmly congratulated him on his escape.

The scene on the grand stand was exception ally brilliant. Among those who witnessed the nce were a large number of ladies, all the diplomats, and many grandees who are en route from different parts of Europe to attend the approach ing jubilee celebrations in London.

In the mean time there was tremendous en citement at the scene of the outrage. The crowd selsed the supposed bomb thrower and belabored him with sticks, stones, kicks, and cuffs, Finally, dazed and bleeding, the man was taken incustody by gendarmes, when it was found that he was a detective in plain clothes who had been assigned to the special duty of protecting the President.

It seems that the detective was near M. Faure's carriage when the bomb was thrown. He immediately dashed into an adjacent wood after the man he suspected had thrown the bomb. He failed to catch him, however, and at once returned to the scene of the explosion. While he was engaged in picking up the remains of the bomb the crowd attacked him, mistaking him for the criminal. The unfortunate victim of the crowd's fury was taken to a hospital.

The police then made a search of the place and found, almost intact, a cylinder seven inches long and three and a half inches in diameter. They also found an old pistol and a dagger, and and a scrap of paper on which was inscribed: "The execution of Felix Faure."

Many arrests were made of persons in the vicinity, but few of the prisoners were detained by the police. Nobody has been arrested since.

Major Meaux Saint-Marc, one of the personal attaches of the President, who was in the landau beside M. Faure, says that those in the carriage undoubtedly had a narrow escape. The bomb fell close to the carriage, and there was a loud explosion, after which the air was filled with suffocating fumes.

The newspapers published special editions giving all the known details of the affair.

Although the thrower of the bomb was not arrested, two youths, aged 16 and 19 years, who are believed to be brothers, named Gallet, were among those arrested. They were detained by the police. It is said that one of them was seen to drop a revolver near the scene of the explosion. He had previously been acting as though he was demented. He is a Socialist.

It is evident that the person who committed the crime had several accomplices, and they were undoubtedly the first to attack the detective, whose name is Roustaux, and by this means covered the escape of the culprit.

The political police, as is their custom after a bomb outrage, will make a search of the lodglags of all persons known or suspected to be

It was noticed that when the bomb exploded President Faure did not display the slightest trace of excitement. Mme. Faure was in the landau with him, and he smilingly reassured

An amazing sunset followed the shock. The smell of sewage permeates the city and suggests that damage has been done to the drainage system, which may possibly result in

TOUGH TOWNS CONVERTED.

Religion Changes the Aspect of a Bad Part of PERRY, Oklahoms, June 13.-An unprece dented revival of religion has prevailed at Ingalls, Cushing and Lawson of late. A removement began in that section six nonths ago, and has continued till it has grown to wonderful proportions. Six months ago the town of Ingalis, which at one time was considered one of the toughest towns in the two Ter ritories, had six saloons. To-day it has none ody could get a license to go into the saloon business. Some of the former liquor sellers are now superintendents in Sunday schools; others are Sunday school teachers, while nearly all are members of the Church. An area of forty miles square, including Ingalls, Cushing, and Lawson, for years was the home of the most noted outlaw bands that ever operated in the West. It was the rendezvous for the Daltons, Doolins, Cook, and other noted bands, whose members are either dead, having penitentiary. Twenty-odd men have been killed n Ingalls within the past six years. The town graveyard contains the bodies of ten men who died with their boots on. Near Lawson fourteen people were killed in a short time.

But all this is past. Where whiskey drinking, murdering, gambling, and all sorts of outlawry existed, churches and churchgoing people are now in control. One of the most noted o these outlaws was Bill Doolin who died with his boots on near Lawson last year. A week ago one of his brothers-in-law was elected superin-tendent of a union Sunday school at Lawson. This man for years was a harborer and a pro tector of Doolin and his notorious gang.

During all this reign of outlawry church mer were scarce and nearly the whole population in the country were apparently in sympathy with the outlaws. The change is so marked and so sudden that it has created comment everywhere. The change was brought about by the efforts of former United States Marshal E. D. Nix. assisted by Sheriff Frank Lake of Pawnee county, and Deputy Marshals Frank M. Canton, William Tightman, and Hank Thomas, These mer routed the outlaws and then a half dozen min isters began a series of revivals which have con-tinued for months in the different localities. Running through the centre of this formerly bad country is Hell Roaring Creek. Preacher Johnston recently held a revival on this creek in a tent, and one hundred joined the church.

ARTIST ZOGBAUM ROBBED His Collection of Military Equipments Looted

-The Thief Trapped. NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 13.-About week ago Rufus F. Zogbaum, the well-known military and naval artist, who resides in the old Lockwood Homestead on Webster avenue, this village, discovered that his studio, which is situated in the carriage house, was being systematically robbed of various equipments and models useful to him in his art work. Mr. Zogbaum found marks which indicated that the stable door had been forced. The thieves had locked all the entrances after their departure, and left everything undisturbed except the articles stolen. He reported his discovery to the police, and said he believed the covery to the police, and said he believed the robbery was the work of boys. Policeman Kelley concealed himself in an anteroom of the studio on Thursday and Friday nights. Last night he again went to the studio.

About 11 o'clock the monotony was disturbed by noises at the transom over the stable door. The door was thrown open and in the darkness Kelley could outline a human figure. The intruder came toward Kelley and passed him. He had picked the garden spade in the stable and with it was about to pry open the door leading to the studie when Kelley pounced upon him. The two rolled over and over in the darkness. Kelley dragged his prisoner out through the studie entrance and took him to the tockup. The prisoner described himself as John Carroll, a printer. He is about six feet tall, and is well dressed. He was locked up and remanded until to-morrow morning.

Mr. Zogbaum said to-day he did not know how long the stealing had been going on. "My first suspicions were aroused last Wednesday," he said, "when I missed a book illustrated by Wenzell. I made an investigation and found that a great many things were gone. I have been many years collecting these naval and military equipments, and believe I had a complete set of every uniform worn in the United States service since the colonial days. Some of the things and several valuable books. A number of artists models are also missing. The collection was valued at several thousand dellars.

PROF. WESTON'S LAUNCH JUST IN TIME TO SAVE A WOMAN.

Miss Guilmette, Her Brother, and Cousin Had flipped Off the Bottom of Their Overturned Bont and All Had Sunk-The Woman's Clothing Caught with a Boat Hook.

Arcule E. Guilmette, a stenographer employed in the uptown office of Moore & Schley, bankers, and his cousin, W. Morton Smith, the financial editor of the Mail and Express, were drowned in the Hudson off Fort Lee vesterday afternoon by the capsizing of a catboat in which they were sailing.

Miss Alvina Guilmette, 22 years old, a sister of Arcule, was with her brother and cousin at the time the boat capsized, but was rescued by s party on board the naphtha launch, Lorn Doone, owned by Prof. Edward Weston, the electrician and inventor, who lives in Newark. The Guilmettes and their cousin, Mr. Smith, lived together at Watkins Park, half a mile b low Fort Lee. They left the house at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and walked to the shore at Buena Vista, where they hired an eighteen-foot catboat at Carlock's boathouse. After an hour's sail, when about midstream, the boat was struck by a squall and was capsized. The three occupants clung to the upturned boat, Guilmette helping his sister with one arm. Smith waved his hat to attract attention and shouted for help. Finally they managed to climb on the bottom of the boat. Prof. Weston's launch was 300 yards away.

The party on the launch consisted of Prof. Weston, Mrs. Weston, their son Edward F., who is a young man, two young women, Miss Grace Flood of Orange, N. J., and Miss Nutting of Buffalo, and the sailing master, Capt. Murck. The Lorna Doone is a fifty-foot boat. The party aboard of her were preparing to take dinner when Miss Flood called attention to the upturned boat, exclaiming: "Look there! Is that a man in the water signalling for help I" With the aid of glasses Prof. Weston was able to see just what had occurred. The Doone was going up the river at the time. Prof. Weston gave orders to hurry to the rescue. Before the Doone reached the upturned boat those aboard her saw the three persons slip from the boat's bottom into the water. One of the men sank out of sight at once. The other made a struggle to keep affoat. When within a few seconds of being rescued he also sank and was not seen again. The woman's clothing kept her affoat for a short time after the man had disappeared. Nevertheless she was sinking for the last time when the naphtha launch reached her. Young Edward Weston plunged a boathook into the water where the woman had disappeared. He managed to get hold of her skirts with it, and, with the aid of Capt. Murck and Prof. Weston, she was drawn to the surface.

The three women on board the Doone helped to drag her aboard. They rolled her over the deck, administered

They rolled her over the deck, administered whiskey, and in other ways strove to resuscitate her, while the men in the party kept up the search for the two men who had disappeared. When Miss Guilmette regained consciousness she became hysterical, calling for her brother, and exclaiming that if he had not been rescued, she wanted to die.

"If Arcule is drowned," she exclaimed, "throw me back into the river."
Capt. Murck quieted her by telling her that her brother had been picked up by another boat. There, when all hopes of recovering the bedies of the two men had been despaired of, the Doone made for the wharf at Buena Vists.

There a carriage was summoned, and Miss Guilmette was taken to her home, a party from the Doone accompanying her. Neighbors were called in who helped care for her.

The rescuing party abandoned their pleasure trip and returned to the Atlantic Yacht Club's house, where Prof. Weston was seen last night.

"It was a very sad affair," said he. "My guests were all feeling joily, and the Doone was going up the river at a good speed when one of the ladies called attention to the upturaed boat. We were near the Jersey shore, passing Fort Lee, at the time, Getting out my glasses I discovered the three persons aitting out ne upturned boat. The men were waving their hats to attract attention. "We were 300 yards away, but at the speed
we were going would reach them within a couple of minutes. The women folks aboard our boat were in an awful state of excitement.
When we got within fifty feet of where the accident had occurred we saw a person rise in the water and then disappear.

"Half a minute later at our bow we saw another body apparent" going down for the last time. My son caugut the clothing with a boat hook and when we hauled the body out of the water we found it was that of a woman.

"To all appearances she was dead. The women folks worked over her, as did Capt. Murck and myself until we had revived her. In the mean time we were also searching for the other two persons.

"The young woman was finally able to tell us her name. She kept calling for her brother. We put in at Buens. Vista and had the young woman taken to her home and cared for.

"Then we went back and searched for the bodies of the two men who had been drowned. Not finding any trace of them, we picked up the overturned catboat and towed her to the Jersey shore.

"The ladies in our party were so much shocked by the affair that we had to give up our pleasure trip and return here. There was so much ex-citement that we forgot to eat dinner." When Miss Guilmette was seen at her home in Watkins Park last night she had partially recovered from the shock from which she had suffered.

"Mr. Smith was sailing the boat," she said,
"and when the squall struck her we were thrown into the water. My brother helped me to keep my head above water, but neither he nor Mr.
Smith could swim, so we all three clung to the

"Then they helped me to climb on top of it. "Then they helped me to climb on top of it, and they also got on it, and we sat there holding on and shouting for help. We were watching the launch coming to our rescue when another gust of wind came, and it seemed as if the unturned boat was blown from under us.

"My skirt kept me afloat for a minute or two and my brother paddled close to me and tried to say something. I did not see Mr. Smith after he fell into the water with us. He seemed to have gone down at once. I heard my brother try to say something and it seemed as if we drifted apart.

Then I felt myself sinking, and I struggled.
Tremembered nothing more until I found three ladies bonding over me and talking to me. I don't know who they were, but I saw it all in a minute, and my brother—oh, my poor brother was lost!"

Several of the neighbors quieted the young hands. This time it is with the bicycle riders of Atlanta and neighborhood, who for many years have pedalled in unrestricted liberty through its beautiful driveways and eaten lunches on its parade grounds. Recently the official residents at the fort began to protest against the army of bicyclists which daily invaded their premises, and took various ways of letting the wheelmen know that they were not wanted. This, how ever, did not discourage the wheelmen, although it created a good deal of bitter feeling on both sides.

Late last night, while scores of bicyclists were whirling about the inclosure, one of their num-ber, Cicero Hopkins, son of a wealthy Atlanta widow, while passing in front of a guardhouse, was confronted by a sentry. The latter lowered his bayonet and ordered Hopkins to ride alower. Hopkins replied that he was riding about as slow as he could, and, before he could say anything roore, the sharp point of the bayonet had pierced him, and he was lying on the ground with blood pouring from his wound. He was carried to the garrison hospital and attended by Dr. Blair Taylor, the post physician, and others who were called in. It was feared that he was mortally hurt, but he rallied sufficiently to be able to be transferred this morning to his home in an army ambulance. To-night it is thought that he will recover.

Col. Cook placed the sentry under arrest, but to-day released him and made a statement defending his position and asserting that the affair was due to young Hopkins's disobedience of the guard's orders. Hopkins denies that, and says that the bayoneting was deliberate. Col. Cook has also issued orders that no more bioyde riders shall be permitted to enter the post grounds at any time and to-day stationed armed guards at the entrances to warn wheelmen. These guards were kept pretty busy. The bicyclists of the city intend to take the case to Washington. his bayonet and ordered Hopkins to ride alower.

MRS. USSHER GETS A DIVORCE.

Daughter of the Founder of Rastman College and Sister of Lieut.-Gov. Woodruff's Wife.

POUGHKEETSIE, June 13.-Mrs. Carlotta Eastman Ussher has secured a North Dakota divorce from her husband, Frederick B. Ussher of Buffalo. The decree was recently granted at Fargo, and it gives Mrs. Ussher the care of her two children and alimony sufficient for her support and the education and support of the children. Mrs. Ussher is a daughter of Harvey G. East man, founder of Eastman College, and a sister of Mrs. Timothy L. Woodruff, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor. She has been prominent in so ciety here for a number of years. On March 17, 1891, she was married to Mr. Usaher, who is a stepson of Gen. Fields of Buffalo. The wedding was a brilliant event. The groom presented his bride with diamonds valued at $2,000, and she bride with diamonds valued at $2,000, and sne also received wedding gifts valued at a large sum. Gen, and Mrs. Fields and friends of the groom from Buffalo came to Poughkeepsle in a special train to attend the wedding. Sail for Europe to Study Its Laws and Its

When the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm IL sailed for Gibraltar on Sat urday morning she carried among her first cabin passengers a party of five young women from Cincinnati, whose summer in Europe is to be spent in sober and serious study of the science of government. The young women are Miss Blanche Allison, Miss Genevieve Clement, Miss Hlanche McGowan, Miss Ida McGowan, and Brown, two boys who are just completing their preparation for college, and Mrs. John H. McGowan are with the party but not exactly of it. The young women were the party, and there should be no mistake about this. They are all gradand Miss Allison took post-graduate courses at New York. During the past winter, for their own amusement and profit, they have been studying the laws of modern nations. Such heavy reading became so fascinating to them that they decided they would like to see just how those laws worked in the nations where how those laws worked in the nations where they were promulgated.

Accordingly a trip to Europe was planned, the main object of which is to study the laws and institutions of the principal European countries. The young women will visit Italy, Greece, Switzerland, Germany, France, Austria, the Netherlands, and the British isles. In Italy they will endeavor to get permission from the Pope to study the archives of the Vatican, and in the other countries they will not only study the laws but they will look into the practical politics of the countries they visit. If they live through it they ill sail from Liverpool on Sept. 9,

A despatch from Floreaville this evening says that the town is full of country people and that the jail is surrounded by a desperate mob of cowboys and farmers, and that all that is needed to carry out the plans for the lynching is leaders. The Sheriff has sworn in a force of deputies and is guarding the jail to the best of his ability. No request for militia has yet been made by him. The Sheriff la known to be one of the bravest men in the State and his deputies are of the same quality of material, and it is thought by some that the mob will not dare to make an attempt, as bloodshed will certainly follow.

An investigating committee now at work has discovered that in these Populist countles blocks of land ranging from six to twenty-two thousand acres have been lost, and the astounding fact is developed that 1,500,000 acres are unaccounted for. This discrepancy comes from people in the country exclusively. The investigation was called for by Mr. Blalock, member of the Legislature from the rural county of Fayette. ATTEMPT TO WRECK A CROWDED SEA REACH TRAIN.

Train of Eight Care Loaded with Coney Island Excursionists Crashes Into a Heavy Steel Bail Placed Across the Tracks at the Extrance to a Tunnel-The Passengers Are Shaken Up, but Escape Injury.

What appeared to be a deliberate attempt to wreck an excursion train with 1,000 men, women, and children aboard was made on the New York and Sea Beach Railroad near Sixtyfifth street and Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, at 9:15 o'clock last night.

From an examination made afterward it is believed that at least three men were concerned in the attempt, and had their plan been successful frightful disaster would have occurred. William Lohmann, assistant superintendent of the company, called at the Fourth avenue police station in Brooklyn last night and reported the case, and Police Captain Kenney started half a dozen men out on a search for the men who attempted the wreck.

Mr. Lohmann said that somebody had placed a steel rail thirty feet long and weighing 560 pounds across the track just above the entrance to the tunnel at that point on the road. The rail was laid squarely across the track, with the evident intention of wrecking the train.

The train, which consisted of eight care crowded with passengers, left the Sea Beach station at Coney Island at 8:50 o'clock to catch the 9:20 o'clock boat for New York at the Bay Ridge ferry. The Brooklyn station of the road is at Third avenue and Sixty-fifth street, and the tunnel is a short distance above Fifth avenue. The trains run through a culvert from the Bay Ridge depot to Seventh avenue. This particular train was due at the Third avenue depot at 9:05 P. M. and to connect with the 9:20 boat at Bay Ridge.

It was the heaviest train of the day. The traffic had been heavy all day. Changes had to be made in the running schedule. Had the train been on schedule time it would have undoubtedly been wrecked, the officials The train was in charge of Conductor Charles Petty, and the engineer was William Mallon, The engineer had not begun to slow down for the Third ave nue station and was running at the usual rate of speed when entering the tunnel. The rays of the headlight shining on the track shead revealed the rail laid across the track. It was too late for the engineer to reverse the lever, however, and the locomotive struck the raff full tilt.

There was a jar, a loud report, and the train joited over the track through the tunnel, a piece of the rail having evidently fallen under the cars.

piece of the rail having evidently fallen under the cars.

The train ran smoothly enough after that, and Engineer Malion thought it best to go right ahead to the Third avenue depot, two blocks beyond. He reached there in two minutes and immediately reported to Mr. Lohmann.

The passengers were badly frightened, but beyond a general shaking up nobody was injured. They were not told what had occurred, and after some passengers disembarked at Third avenue the train went on to Bay Ridge, where the majority took the ferry for this city, all unconscious of the danger they had passed through.

Mr. Lohmann and Policeman Kelly, who was stationed at the Third avenue depot, burried back along the track to find out what had caused the trouble.

They found the heavy rail smashed into three pieces, one of which was in the shape of the letter "U." Mr. Lohmann was startled at the evident attempt to wreck the train, and leaving the policeman at the scene he rain to the station house to inform the police.

The embankment of the culvert at the point where the attempt at wrecking took place slopes down a distance of thirty feet, and Mr. Lohmann thinks the rail was carried or rolled down the embankment.

He says that the Sea Beach company had no

He says that the Sea Beach company had no ralls of the kind used lying beside their track. A train bound for Coney Island passed the point safely twenty minutes before the inbound train struck the rail. Nothing was seen of the rail by the engineer of the outward train.

On Sept. 2, 1895 (Labor Day), there was a big accident on the Sea Beach road near Woodlawn station, which is near the scene of the attempt at wrecking last night.

A train made up of seventeen cars crowded with excursionists from Newark was run into by a runaway engine and sixty-seven persons any chance fallen on the track in the manner in which it was found. He declared that it would have taken at least three men to have moved have taken at least three men to have moved the rail down the embankment.

The tracks of the Culver route of the Long Island Railroad run parallel with those of the Sea Beach at a distance of thirty feet, and it may be that the rail was one of those used on the Culver tracks.

Up to 1 o'clock this morning the police had made no arrests.

STABBED BY A PRISONER. Iwo Recpers in the Eastern Penitentiary Injured Seriously. PHILADELPHIA, June 13.-The Eastern Penitentiary in this city was the scene this morning of a serious stabbing affray. Two keepers in the institution were engaged in removing convict 8,210 from one cell to another, when he drew a knife which he had concealed and stabbed both in the abdomen in an effort to escape. The two were weakened by the attack and unable to deend themselves against him, but summoned aid of the turnkey, who, with the assistance of others of the jailers, succeeded in subduing the assailant and effecting his recapture. He did not gain egress from the corridor in which the and gain egress from the corridor in which the attack was made.

Convict 8,210 was consigned to the Eastern Penitentiarry a short time ago for felonious assault, and is serving a long term. It is not known how he obtained the knife, but he has given signs of revolt on several previous occasions. His transfer to another ward was ordered on this account. Neither of the injured men will die unless some unforeseen difficulty arises. The prison physicians cared for them, and they are resting comfortably.

MRS. MARTIN SWALLOWS A PIN. The Boctors Have Pailed to Remove It from

San Francisco, June 13 .- Mrs. John Martin. who gained notoriety in this city and New York by her sensational behavior, swallowed a pin a few days ago, and is seriously ill. The pin pene trated the tissues of her throat, and the doctors used knife is the attempt to remove it, but failed. The pin is still there, but the woman is lowly recovering.

This woman is probably Mrs. Hoffman Martin, who figured in the police courts of this city in January last as prosecutor against Actor E. J. Henley, who was discharged, and afterwar figured as a defendant on Henley's complaint of sending him threatening letters, and also for de-clining to pay a toard bill to Miss Helen A. Ralph of 22 West Twenty-seventh street. Mrs. Martin produced a play called "Adele," just once, at the Murray Hill Theatre, in which she appeared in the title rôle.

NOTHING HEARD OF THE VESUVIUS. She is Supposed to He Chaning a Filibuster Off

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 13,-Nothing has een heard of the cruiser Vesuvius since she left Mayport so suddenly on Friday night. It is not known where she is, and the officers of the Wilmington are quite interested in the chase she is supposed to be having. The local papers here say that the invisterious steamer she is after was the City of Key West on her way to Wilmington to be repaired. But the knowing ones say if that is so why did she run when the cruiser put after her. The Cubans laugh over the incident and say little. It is supposed that she may have captured the steamer and taken her into some other port.

HORSE PRISONED IN A GULCH.

Got Out Under the Supervision of Mrs. Elliot F. Shepard, Who Owns Him. TARRYTOWN, N. Y., June 13.-An accident be fell one of Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard's most valuable horses yesterday afternoon. Her coachman was driving an empty coach to the Scarborough depot. Between the entrance to the Shepard place and the Shepard Memorial Church there is a waterfall near the road. The water fron this fall runs through an archway under the road and thence down by the Croton Aqueduct. The recent rain had swollen the brook and increased the noise of the fall. One of the horses became frightened while passing and shied. He fell over the road embankment. Here he rested on the steep embankment, held only by the har ness. The coachman sprang out of the carriage and cut the harness. Then the horse fell into the brook below. The force of the stream was so great that it carried the animal under a fence and down into gulch fifteen feet deep beside the Aqueduct. Here he was imprisoned, as the embankment was too steep for him to climb. Mrs. Shepard was notified and she ordered a gang of carpenters to the scene at once. For several hours they worked steadily under her personal supervision. At last an inclined plane was built and the horse was got out. He is cut badly about the legs and body.

MEXICO'S NEW VOLCANO.

A Commission Sent to Study the Phonon and the Attendant Barthquake.

OAXACA, State of Oaxaca, Mexico, June 13,-Additional reports are being received here by mail of the recent disastrous earthquake shocks in the southeastern part of this State and on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. These reports tell of the new volcano that has been formed near the town of Juauelt, about 100 miles northwest of Tehuantepec. No one has yet visited the new volcano, as the Mexicans of that section are too nuch terrorized to go near it, but smoke and fire can be seen issuing from a mountain some

The Government has sent a commission from the City of Mexico to investigate the report and get the facts in regard to the damage caused by the earthquake shocks. The commission will go to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec by way of Vera Cruz.

SCHULZ FOUND GUILTY. File, Saw, and Knife Found Hidden in His Clothing. MILFORD, Pa., June 13.-The jury in the Schulz murder case, after being out all night. brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree at 9:45 o'clock this morning. Schulz will gree at 9:45 o'clock this morning. Schulz will be sentenced at the special session of the Pike County Court on June 28. His counsel will make a motion for a new trial.

He was brought before the Judge this morning to hear the verdict, and bowed very low and smiled. On Saturday evening a new suit of clothes was given to him and the old ones searched. In a belt around the waist was found a fine three-cornered file and a one-foot belt saw. In the counter of his right shoe was a six-bladed knife. He was much depressed after this discovery.

HAWAII TO BE ANNEXED.

TREATY TO BE SENT TO THE SENATE AFTER THE TARIFF FIGHT.

This Is the Opinion of Those in a Position to Know the Pacts-Minister Hatch Intimates That a Treaty Similar to That of the War-

rison Administration Will Soon He Ready. WASHINGTON, June 13.-It is the opinion of those qualified to speak, that after the Tariff bill is disposed of by the Senate, President McKinley will send to the Senate a treaty for the annexation of Hawaii. For the past three months the Hawaiian contingent in Washing ton has been quietly working to secure a treaty of annexation, and their labor has not been i

The remarks of Senator Frye of Maine, in the Republican caucus yesterday, in regard to the Hawaii question are looked upon by Minister Hatch to mean that the President is in favor of Hawaiian annexation, and the Minister and his associates have since been in a happy frame Minister Hatch intimates that a treaty similar that sent in during the closing days of the Harrison Administration will be laid before the Senate at no distant date. Since March 4 Minister Hatch has been inundated with letters and messages urging him to press Hawaii's claim for annexation, but he has refrained from taking an advanced step until the Tariff bill was well under way. Now that the chances for the passage of the Tariff bill are bright, Mr. Hatch has started in to press Hawaii's claim.

Assisting Mr. Hatch are Lorrin A. Thurston and Commissioners Armstrong and Kenney of Honolulu. They have been in Washington several weeks and have talked with a majority of the Senators, sounding them on the question of ratifying a treaty of annexation, should one be sent in by the President. The result of this labor is that a majority of the Senate is supposed to be tavorable to the annexation of the islands.

Mr. Hatch and his associates discovered, they say, shortly after their work began, that a great and powerful influence in the way of Hawailan annexation is Lilluokalani, former Queen of the islands. She has been in Washington since early in January with the supposed purpose of thwarting annexation. Just how far she has aucceeded is yet to be seen. Minister Hatch is confident, however, that a treaty of annexation once sent to the Senate will certainly be ratified.

A United States Senator to night made the somewhat vague though significant remark that "something would be heard to drop" in the Hawailan matter within the next ten days, but might be. eral weeks and have talked with a majority of the

HE EATS BROKEN GLASS.

The Boy Frenk Says It Is Not the Glass but M Rays That Is Hurting Him. OAKLAND, Cal., June 13,-William Leary, the boy freak who ate large quantities of broken glass and asserted that it was his sole food, could not stand exposure to the X rays. He will begin suit for damages against Dr. O. D. Hamlin, a physician, for injuries alleged to have been in-nicted by exposure to the rays. The boy ate glass for pay at the exposition here last winter, and at his request the doctors examined him by the Roentzen light to see how his organs worked. He now asserts that he was injured. The doc-tors are inclined to attribute his trouble to his diet.
